Blooming Great Spring in Thredbo

Springtime in the mountains is a cheeky little pocket of fun on the Australian alpine calendar. With a massive line-up of events, sunny weather and great conditions - this September in the mountains is shaping up to be one of the best.

The 2017 winter snowfall totals eclipsed 300cm's this week and with very cold temperatures, visitors are raving about the snow quality and trail coverage. The Snowy Hydro snow depth recorded at Spencers Creek 24th August was 185cm, the highest recorded depth since 2013.

Following on from an awesome August, that saw over 200 centimetres of snow fall across the month, is super September. There is 100% of the mountain open – that's all lifts, all trails, all terrain parks plus a packed program of special events, there is lots to love about this spring in Thredbo.

“The long term outlook suggests that September will be slightly drier and milder than average - that leads to plenty of bluebird days” said Thredbo's resident meteorologist Guy Dixon

To grab your slice of spring riding bliss Thredbo has announced a 72 hour sale on a 3 day Spring Flexi Pass, giving you the freedom to choose the days you ride from September 1 until October 2. Lock it in today for $269 for adults and $149 for the kids, that's a saving of $106 for adults and $64 for the kids, sale ends 4.00pm Thursday 31 August, 2017.
